Completed migration

Migration closure record

This document closes a completed migration of synthetic staging data. All work described here has been reviewed and accepted, and there are no unresolved decisions or unfinished actions. The record is retained to show what was completed and which checks supported acceptance. It is not a proposal for another migration. A reader preparing a future meeting should not turn completed checklist entries into new subjects solely because they appear under separate headings.

Staging data movement

Completed: Move staging data. The operator moved the agreed synthetic records into the destination environment using the approved procedure. The destination was checked against the prepared sample, and the reviewer confirmed that the move met the documented acceptance condition. The source was retained as required by the completed exercise notes. No further copy, reorganisation or change of environment is requested in this closure record.

Row count validation

Done: Validate row counts. The reviewer compared the recorded counts for the agreed tables and confirmed that they matched the accepted migration summary. Differences found during the rehearsal had already been corrected before the final run, and the accepted result contains no outstanding discrepancy. The count sheet is stored with the migration record. Mentioning the earlier rehearsal does not reopen its corrected issue or create another validation task.

Temporary access removal

Done: Remove temporary access. The temporary operator accounts were disabled after the accepted migration check. The access review confirmed that the normal staging roles remained available and that the temporary permissions were no longer active. This task was signed off by the reviewer. The note does not request a new access role, another permission review or a later decision about when the accounts should be removed.

Archive and acceptance

The migration summary, count sheet and access confirmation were placed in the project archive. The coordinator checked that the archive could be opened by the intended reviewers, and the closure notification was delivered. These administrative steps are Completed as well. All observations from the rehearsal were resolved before acceptance, and no exception was carried forward. There is no next-meeting section containing work that remains to be done.

Final status

There are no open issues and no items for the next meeting. The completed tasks are historical evidence, not future work. If another request is raised later, it should be documented as a new source with its own scope. For this record alone, no further meeting discussion is required. The correct interpretation is that a detailed document can still contain no agenda topics when everything it describes has already reached completion.
